WELFARE BUDGETS TOO HIGH

According to reports from Tallahassee, many boards of county commissioners are asking for increased amounts for welfare budgets to take care of the unfortunate of their counties. This strikes us as particularly odd during a period when a shortage of men's reports in many industries, construction companies are bidding for more workers at high pay, and the army and navy are taking a large number of younger men from the ranks of the unemployed.

The question can reasonably be asked: if welfare budgets are increased now when can they ever be reduced? If demands on welfare funds are increasing now what will be the situation when another depression sets in?

Six weeks ago this newspaper published a report of court house records here which showed that "relief" is costing Brevard county some $20,000 annually — and the total does not include county fair expenses and some other forms of charity which the county provides.

An inspection of relief expenditures in this county over the past fifteen years shows: 1. That the cost has not more than doubled in that time, and 2. Many of the same families were asking for help then are still "on the county," indicating that once on the relief payroll, they seldom get off.

With CCC camps employing the youths from many families, with the state welfare board taking care of scores of the aged, the blind, and the dependent children, and with industry absorbing those who want to work, it seems strange that welfare budgets in any Florida county should be increased at this time.—Titusville Star-Advocate.

ONE PRICE TO SOLDIERS

Profiteering is always and in any case a nasty business. There is one phase of it that is even worse than the ordinary variety. That is the effort to profiteer at the direct expense of soldiers.

During the Arkansas-Louisiana maneuvers, it was noted by officers that wherever the troops appeared there was a tendency for prices to shoot up, and for goods of prices to exist for civilians, one price to soldiers.

Communities in which large numbers of soldiers are operating may wish to protect their own citizens from any such profiteering by taking local measures to prevent it. To profiteer on the small pay of soldiers on active duty is not a thing in which any community will take much pride.—Palm Beach Post.

POTS AND PANS

Housewives have their troubles with pots and pans, but now Uncle Sam has the problem on his hands. In their excited enthusiasm for preparedness, some defense officials were frightened by the presumed shortage of aluminum.

So the appeal went out to donate the old coffee pots and other metal utensils to be turned into airplanes. As true patriots, the ladies trotted these articles out, perhaps as an excuse to get rid of them. Then they proceeded to the stores and bought new ones.

But the government does not know what to do with the things, as the smelters seem to have little use for them. Possibly they can be re-distributed to those who need pans or assigned to the various camps.

This was just another example of the silliness which grips certain officialdom in the times of crisis, without first investigating and learning the facts.

The aluminum pan drive belongs in the category with the shortage in the gasoline can.—Miami Herald.

A NICE PLACE TO LIVE

"What am I angry about this week?" That is probably the question most editors ask themselves when they sit down to think about a good subject for an editorial.

It is usually easier to criticize than it is to praise. We can think about what we don't like in Washington. We can think about the money that is wasted in the crookedness in our political machines, the attitude of various officials toward war and anyone of those subjects makes good material for an editorial.

But maybe we ought to do a little more Pollyanna type of thinking. Maybe instead of thinking of mistakes which have been made by our President or our governor or our town officials, we ought to spend a little more time thinking about the good things they have done.

For his spite of mistakes we can ferret out all along the way, America somehow continues to be a pretty nice place to live. We may be in debt up to our ears and we may not have a lot of things we think we should have, but we do continue to have our liberty, freedom, and as we please, opportunities galore and a thousand and one other things which the people in the rest of the world are green with envy.

It is a marvelous "Why, it is so good" thing. But often the editor and the readers get into such a critical state of mind that it begins to make them sour.

When we begin to feel that way it's time to take a few moments to re-examine the things we have to be thankful for. And when we do that the things we have been criticizing no matter how justified our criticism may be, often fade into insignificance.—Florida Searchlight.

Wayne Morris, recent star of "Wanted Wings," became a member of Uncle Sam's Navy in May, 1941. He was appointed to the rank of Ensign.

When asked what he thought of United States Navy, Morris said: "I think every man who is considering joining a military service should look into the 'glories' of a life in the Navy and Naval Reserve."

Ensign Morris is pictured here in his line of duty as a member of the Naval Aviation Cadet Selection Board, the Long Beach Naval Reserve Air Base.

Canal Point School Studies The Flag At Chapel Program

Patriotic Songs and Flag Pledge Are A Part Of The Program

"How to Treat The Flag" was the theme of the chapel program presented by members of the seventh grade Friday, October 17, at the Canal Point school, under the direction of Miss Sue Maxwell. The program was patriotic songs, the pledge to the flag, and "An American's Creed" by the entire school. It was an informational program aimed at enlightening the student body.

Miss Maxwell and Betty Scar, gave a brief history of the stars and stripes was designed to the present time when a star is often to represent each additional state that comes into the Union. During the chapel service in the public and school questions about the flag—how to display it, when it should be folded, its position in a parade, how to destroy a flag that is faded or torn.

Each question was answered by Harry Francis, James Latham, helped him by demonstrating with the flag what should be done. He also did a play on the stage and a small flag that he could raise and lower. He demonstrated how the flag should be attached to the pole, that it should never be allowed to touch the ground.

It was shown that when a flag is to be flown at half mast, as on Memorial Day, the flag is first hoisted to the top of the pole for a moment, then lowered slowly and ceremoniously to the half mast position. There it remains until noon at which time it is again hoisted to the top of the flag pole by the school.

The visual education program set up by the school shows that much consultation and time has been spent on the arrangement. Many interesting and enlightening facts were presented for the use of the students during this school term. The major part of this program is financed by the Canal Point P.T.A. in the form of a rental picture. This program is in addition to the usual program of the local P.T.A., which consists of matching the county funds for library books, the dental clinic, the health center, and a set of Encyclopaedia.

FULLER'S FULMINATIONS

A BENEFIT TO BARBERS
 Fine, free flowing fellowship can be found in barber shops in quantities not to be had in any other place. Know, the fellowship in a church is fine and fraternal. But it is not extended quite so warmly and freely to non-members of the church. Barber shops feature fellowship. It is a cardinal tenet of nearly all fraternities, orders, and societies. The KKK, again it is limited largely to those within the fold — the members. Chris clubs the Rotary, Kiwanis, Exchange, Lions, Civitan, etc., have a brand of fellowship that is always exhilarating and positively healthy in results.

But, once again, the fellowship of these fine organizations is largely limited to the members in good standing, to wit: those with their dues paid up.

The only place I know where fellowship flows freely and without limitation, restriction, restraint, or reservation is in a barber shop. Anyone who enters a barber shop is in the company of patriots (their trade mark is in the colors of the flag) institutions is received and accepted into full fellowship, regardless of race, class, or previous condition of tarditude. Any person who is articulate and audible in recital, then join the conversation marathon that goes on forever in a barber shop.

No learning is too profound, and no ignorance is too abysmal for the forum of the barber shop. In a barber shop, formality is frowned upon, and etiquette is abandoned. The only rules in force are, "First come, first served," and "Pay as you leave."

The barber shop is the most nearly democratic of all the institutions that abound in this great and growing nation. Little difference is shown in a barber shop to persons, because of their social or worldly achievement. A bell boy's quarter will buy the same kind of shave that the bank president gets for a like sum. A hired man pays the same price for his haircut as a contractor who has just come from a big job.

When he finished, the barber had done on the head of the man that he held in electric light over the pseudo statesman's head and said to him to look at his scalp so, there is no incentive for the barber to fawn on the affluent. The haircut of a barber shop is esteemed and evaluated largely for their ability to contribute to barber shop bubble. And it is the best brand of bubble I have heard so far. There is really nothing like barber shop conversation. It is so soothing, satisfying, and as untroubled, untroubled, and untroubled, and untroubled. It is untroubled and untroubled. The biggest trouble of a barber shop is the shade of a tree at the end of a long corn row. were in a barber shop. I pity men who shave at home and have their hair cut by their wives. A man who goes some time in a barber shop is not equipped for the order of existence. And he has the most perfect of things, that modern civilization affords.

The barber, himself, is the most perfect of things, that modern civilization affords. He is a trained nurse, save and except the trained nurse. That humanity can boast. As a life-long, communicant of barber shop, I claim to know my subject. I have never met a grouchy barber. I have never known an impolite barber. I have never met an unkind barber. I have never seen a dull barber — they all talk freely. Barbers sympathize with suffering. I have had them help me almost to the hollow with a dull razor, but they always agonized and carried me to the door. Many barbers are quite witty. One of the wittiest was a fellow named A. D. (Red) Yates, who used to be in the barber shop of Whigham, Georgia. He was in practice at Jacksonville for many years. I have had him quit to become a Jay tender.

One day a somewhat unattractive politician walked into the shop where Yates worked and asked for a hair-cut. When it was finished, the barber asked the politician about going to Washington, explaining that he had a new connection that would clean a scalp for him. The barber made a lot of extravagant claims for the cleansing quality of the mixture. This politician told him to go to hell and give him an application.

When he finished, the barber had done on the head of the man that he held in electric light over the pseudo statesman's head and said to him to look at his scalp in the mirror. The politician took one look and exclaimed, "That stuff is marvelous. 'Why, it is made my scalp as clean as my political record.'" Whereupon, Yates, who had heard it all, said, "Well, you had better give him another application."

It may be recalled that I published a summer series of sermons on some celebrated and notorious Florida editors. It got so bad that I had to stop the series short before I got around to giving a going-over to all the likely subjects.

It is my present plan to toss a treatise from time to time to the remaining victims of my list of erudite and egotistical editors of Florida. The first of these is a little "literature" on the most versatile, varied, and voluminous editor in Florida. He is an editor whose sound efforts for a gifted radio commentator. He is Red Arkell, editor, owner, and headmaster of the Sebring American.

This Arkell has had a career as colorful and fantastic as anything you can conceive of. He went to school in Toronto, Canada, with Mary Pickford when she was still just a little girl. He flew with Eddie Rickenbacker when he had his first air battle before the first World War. He was the first reporter hired by the late Arthur Brisbane when he bought the Detroit Times. He established a record for a prolonged broadcast last in 1932 when he talked for eight straight hours over Station WOL, giving the election returns. He was a columnist for the once mighty MacAmmberg before that tip-sheet trillionaire was put in the political calaboose for failing to mention Roosevelt's name in Mac's unmercifully increased. He broadcast a Sunday program at Radio City for a solid year immediately before Mayor Baruch took over that hour. He presided that foul and fetid apostrophe of ignorance and religious hatred, Father Coughlin, on Sunday afternoon broadcasts over the Mutual Broadcasting in 1936. He was also just ahead of the lovely singer, Jessica Dragonette, of the dulcet voice. This incredible character owned ten weekly newspapers in Florida, back during the boom in 1924. He has written three books, one of which was a "best seller" in New York. He is interviewed a "table cavalcade of celebrated characters."

GIVE YOUR CAR HIGH ANTI-KNOCK IN BOTH SPEED RANGES

Don't you find that you drive your car mainly in the two speed ranges symbolized by these boats? You use the low speed range in traffic and the high speed range on the open road. Therefore for knockless driving, you need a gasoline that gives high anti-knock in both these speed ranges—not in just one.

Sinclair H-C Gasoline gives you this Double-Range Anti-Knock. The reason is that H-C goes through two special processes in the course of refining. Peacock Shines
Against Leon Team

Calvin Peacock, former Blue Devil football star, came in for his share of the glory last Friday night when the Rollins freshmen played the star aggregation representing Leon high school in Tallahassee. Peacock has been going good with the Rollins team and Coach Macdonald is well pleased with the work that the Peacock is doing.

As story out of Tallahassee, the game told of Peacock's accomplishments in the game with Leon. We quote part of the story below:

TALLAHASSEE.—Working behind a fast charging line, Calvin Peacock and Donnie Hansen led the Rollins College freshmen to a thrilling 34-19 victory over the Leon High School Lions before 3,000 here.

Peacock scored three of his team's touchdowns, one on a 67-yard dash and another on a 28-yard run, while Hansen ran 22 yards for another and Peacock passed to Clark for the fifth score. Hansen place-kicked four of the extra points.

The steadily passing arm of little Billy Green gave Leon her first two touchdowns, Russell grabbing one for 22 yards and the first score. Thiff caught another and dashed 40 yards for another touchdown in the third period. Jim Rickland, lanky Leon back, caught a partially blocked pass over the goal line for Leon's final score in the fourth quarter.

The Tallahassee Democrat in another story says Peacock is "one of the best runners seen on the local field in many a day." The paper stated further that the Rollins attack was led by "two great halfbacks, Peacock and Hansen."

Defense Classes
Are To Be Held

National defense work classes will be held in Pahokee each week if enough young men can be interested in the project. The classes will be conducted by the federal government and instruction will be free to those who attend. Young men between 17 and 25 years of age are urged to go to B. Elliott's office and register for the course in order that the officials can determine how many classes and how often they should be held. The idea of the classes is to give young men preemployment training.

Sebring Is Booming
As Defense Work Is
Swinging Into HighCitizens For Miles Around
Are Being Benefited
By Big Payrolls

SEBRING, Oct. 23. (FNS)—Uncle Sam's aviation expansion program has taken this section of the state out of the usual summer doldrums and is pouring out around $150,000 weekly to the approximately 3,500 men employed in the construction of the army's basic flying school near here.

Not only Highlands county residents are being benefited. The workmen also come from the adjoining counties, and as far away as Jacksonville and West Palm Beach, there being a boom in the hotels, rooming houses, restaurants, and other businesses.

In addition to the influx of work men, Sebring's population has been increased by about 20 officers, 200 enlisted men, and a large number of civil service employees. The authorized strength of the school is about 225 officers, 1,500 enlisted men, about 100 civilians, and around 250 civilian employees.

The school is being built on a 200-acre tract, about 10 miles southeast of Sebring and about two miles east of Sebring City. It will have a large hangar, with Lake Okechobee and Red Fish Lake where recreational areas will be developed for the post personnel.

The commanding officer is Major L. H. Roddeck, who has supervised the construction of the school since its organization. Fifty-four new green and white uniforms have been ordered by the army officials, although all the money hasn't yet been put on the line. Members of the army and civilians were happy this week when the city council of Sebring agreed to make a donation of $200 to the uniform fund if the county commissioners would put up a similar amount.

CALLED TO GEORGIA
BY MOTHER'S DEATH

The five Bolton brothers living in the Everglades, Charles, Ben, William E. of Clewiston, and Louis and Fred of Lake Harbor, were called to Dawson, Ga., by the cruel illness of their mother, Mrs. J. N. Bolton, who died there Saturday night after a long illness. The wives and children of all except Fred Bolton, who is single, accompanied them. Three other sons and a daughter survive.

supplies to filling stations because the month's quotas have been used.

Similar critical situations will be likely, he said, "in other sections because of increased need of gasoline to serve 16 defense bases now under construction or in active operation together with constructing roads and defense highways as well as a large influx of labor and related business activities serving these areas."

The increased population because of defense work has "no relation to a condition which existed one year ago," the governor said. Florida gasoline distributors are limited to 97½ per cent of their sales for the same month last year.

In reply to a telegraphed statement from Frey that complainants may appeal to the coordinator, Holland said "it is not sufficient to advise the general public to make appeals for individual decisions when the whole question is caused by extraordinary conditions which affect every function of public and private business."

"Respectfully and urgently request that you send to Florida an official of your office authorized to act in determining these problems and settling them on the ground under the spirit and letter of your limitation."

"As now being patriotically involved the order is creating chaos and confusion and no one has authority under the order to correct the same, and gasoline distributors are unwilling to take in dependent action to meet emergency cases for fear of complications."
